TALES FROM BIG CITIES

This City Is Solving Its Own Peace Problems

FLINT, MICH.—It is a self-evident truth that if every American community took care of its own problems the United States would have fewer national problems. Every community should be as nearly self-sufficient as possible.

Very few communities have made so much as a beginning. Even during the active food conservation hundreds and thousands of communities were sinning against its first principle—local consumption of local food products.

Flint has set out to solve the problem of re-establishing industry on a peace basis with energy that gives the experiment great interest. Without waiting for federal initiative and proceeding on the theory that the way to readjust is to readjust, the business men of Flint have taken concerted action both to prevent any disturbance of conditions of employment and to modify the inflation of the cost of living caused by the war. They have resolved to keep their employees at work at their old jobs with their old wages while at the same time seeking to effect substantial price reductions in the necessities of life.

They have had the price of milk reduced by one cent a quart by agreement, the price of shoes by 10 per cent and the price of coal by from 3 to 5 per cent, or to a figure below that fixed by the fuel administration. Landlords have voted a 15 per cent reduction of rentals for 90 days.

Is Flint to become an industrial Altruria? It has started what it hopes will become a "nation-wide movement to break the upward trend in prices throughout the world." Whether or not that broad ideal is realized, the city has attacked the problem of high prices and industrial unrest where it is logically open to attack. Curing local evils first by local means should best effect an improvement of general conditions.

Chicago "Kewpies" and Their "Bureau de Amour" CHICAGO.—The police of the Windy City are taking on great airs these days. They claim they have something on every other police department in the United States. What is it? Well, it's a sort of "bureau de amour," as the police put it. And the detectives who are doing Cupid work don't know whether to blush or fight when addressed as "Kewpie."

The reason for this bureau is a letter from Marcel de Verneuil, the acting French consul in Chicago, who asked Chief of Police John J. Garity to investigate three young men, American soldiers in France, their families, their standing in the community, and so on. Object, matrimony.

The acting consul explained that the request for this information, following French customs, came to him from three countrywomen of his, who have accepted Chicago boys to be their husbands. Not wishing to take a pig in a poke, even if said pig appears to be A No. 1 in every respect, these young Frenchwomen have exercised native caution in finding out just who the boys are and all about their families.

Their names? Well, M. Verneuil explained that the requests came to him in a confidential manner, that he did not wish to make the names public, but it was intimated that all three of the young men lived on the South side before they enlisted and sailed for La Belle Francaise.

"Diana of the Dunes" Weeps Over a Giant Friend VALPARAISO, IND.—Paul Wilson, 6 feet 5 inches sans footwear, is awaiting trial in the Valparaiso jail on charges of housebreaking preferred by Henry W. Lehman of Evanston and C. H. Spring of Chicago, both of whom live betimes in the Indiana dunes, close to nature and to Alice Gray, better known as "Diana of the Dunes."

Diana slipped back to nature some time ago and supported herself vicariously as she disappeared in the sands. She eked out her uncertain latter by gifts of her neighbors, who included Lehman and Spring and "Fisherman" Johnson.

A little while ago Diana's neighbors began to miss butter, eggs, guns and blankets. After a rainy night, in which a crate of eggs disappeared, Johnson followed tracks to Diana's shack.
There he found Diana and a man whose head was up among the rafters. He was too big to be stopped and made off, notwithstanding Johnson's rifle.

"Fish" Johnson found City Marshal Pillaup of Chesterton near by and a man hunt developed which led to Wilson's capture under a tree as he slept.
He was taken to Chesterton and locked up.

Diana came and gazed through the bars at the being to whom she had given shelter. He hung his head and turned away. Diana came sorrowfully forth and wept.

"The man asked for shelter and I had no idea he was paying for it by robbing my neighbors," she said. "I took him in because he was cold and wet and hungry."

A notebook found on Wilson contained memoranda to the effect that he whipped Carl Morris twice and earned a draw from him once.

The dunes are the famous sand dunes of northwestern Indiana, along the shore at the head of Lake Michigan. Chicago hopes to establish the Dunes National park here. It is now a wilderness enjoyed by many Chicagoans.

It Just Happened; No Joker Could Be So Cruel
BROOKLYN.—Counselor George E. Brower occasionally indulges in a "friendly little game." George was sitting in the other evening for a short session and the kind dealer gave him three deuces. He drew two cards, and glancing casually took note of the fact that one of them was a two-spot. So he shut up his hands like a jackknife and tried to hide the fact that he had four of a kind. The center of the table began to look quite attractive after a few moments. Finally there were only Brower and one other in the competition. The other man paid for the privilege of seeing what George was holding so tenderly, and George, with a confident flourish, spread his five cards on the table.

They were all of the same denomination, the whole five of 'em, 'n' gosh, and everybody began to look askance at Brower.

He was right there with the alibi and the reprieve and all the other legal defenses, but the jury did not seem to take much stock in his protestations.
A committee was appointed to investigate, and when the pack was counted it was found to consist of 56 cards, eight of which were two-spots.
Everybody in the room said "me-ow" in a loud vulgar way and the kitty opened her maw and swallowed up the makings of two theater tickets, two suppers and the price of a taxi in a twinkling.

George says he never did believe in a "duce" wild" game.
Of course it just happened; no joker could be so cruel.

Wounded Yanks; Hospital; Plate Glass; Many Notes
NEW YORK.—In a big building at Sixth avenue and Eighteenth street there were 5,000 gloriously happy wounded Yankee soldiers. Wounds don't hurt so much, you know, when you're back in Yankee land on your way to your own home town. The big department store, now converted into army de-baration hospital No. 3, is a half-way station between France and that well-remembered little town up in Vermont, or maybe in Iowa or Minnesota or Illinois.

Long before the visiting hours were over the hospital was jammed until it could hold no more and the doors had to be closed. Hundreds of disappointed men and women and girls were forced to stand outside.

Then followed an odd scene: Pretty girls flattened their noses against the window glass and stared longingly at the battered heroes within. The battered heroes looked back just as longingly. One can't carry on much of a conversation through a half-inch plate glass window.

Notebooks and pencils made their appearance. "Write Walter O'Brien, second floor," appeared on a slip of paper pressed against the window pane by a husky doughboy in a bathrobe.

"Don't forget Oscar Vashow, third floor," wrote his neighbor. Much nodding of heads by the pretty girls without.

On the fifth floor facing Sixth avenue a Yank let down a rope to the street. He got many tugs on his line and pulled up cigarettes, candy and chocolate.
